Narrator: AN DO
Interviewer: Thinh Do
Date: May 16, 2016
Location: Cerritos, California
Sub-Collection: Vietnamese American Experience Course, Spring 2015
Length of interview: 59:42

Time Log

00:32 An Do discusses his childhood and where he grew up in Vietnam
2:36 He describes his experience on where he was on April 30th, 1975
5:02 He explains how he left Vietnam and found the US embassy
8:28 He talks about how he got to Guam
11:08 His uncle and dad didn't want to leave but was placed at Chaffee, Arkansas
13:01 If you were in the intelligence services at the time in Vietnam, you would be killed
13:55 He talks about how every night at Fort Chaffee there is crying from missing their families
15:56 He talked about his transition from Vietnam to America
17:74 He tells some stories of his time in Vietnam about the shooting and missiles.
20:33 His sponsored is from Emberson, Illinois and he helped them find an apartment and job
23:40 Got close with another Vietnamese family and moved to Long Beach, California
25:45 There were no girls in their group so there wasn't any fancy cooking
27:25 He explains the moving to Long Beach, California and the difference in weather from Chicago, Illinois
30:18 He compares the Vietnamese community from back then and now
32:45 He talks about his process of sponsoring the rest of his family over
39:50 He explains his decision upon coming to America
43:29 He describes his high school and college experience and how he got to school.
47:45 He was young and idealistic. He picked civil engineer to soon one day come back to Vietnam to fix the roads
49:10 He explains where he is living right now and how he got there
57:40 He talks about how he met his wife and his college friends.